New York's most star-studded real estate deals BY JENNIFER GOULD KEIL

Moby's former digs at the Eldorado offer epic Central Park and city views.

Moby's $5.75M 4-story penthouse

A glam Central Park West penthouse — which was once owned by musician and animal-rights activist Moby (inset) — is about to hit the market for $5.75 million. The sprawling four-story home occupies the entire 31st, 32nd, 33rd and 34th floors of the legendary Eldorado's south tower. With park and city skyline views from every room, the penthouse features a semi-private elevator landing, a dramatic staircase and a large corner living room that overlooks the Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis Reservoir. Other perks include three landscaped terraces, a chef's kitchen and a private bedroom wing, not to mention serious NYC street cred (the building's famous residents over the years have included Alec Baldwin, Faye Dunaway, and Michael J. Fox). The listing broker is Douglas Elliman's Fran Katzen.
